B.S.C.P.

From the General Advertiser.

The late capture at sea, on her passage from New Orleans to Philadelphia, of the vessel built on the Ohio, within the state of Pennsylvania, owned by the citizens of the United States, and whose cargo belonging to American citizens, consists in productions of the growth of this country, demonstrates the evident necessity of a treaty with Spain, respecting the navigation of the Mississippi.

It is a matter of fact, that the lands of the western country are much more luxuriant and fertile than those of the Atlantic parts of the United States; it will follow then that western cultivated lands will afford a larger proportion of produce for exportation than the same quantity of cultivated lands on the eastern side of the mountains; but when we take also into consideration, that most of the western inhabitants are farmers, that there are but few mechanics among them, and that they have no large towns to supply, we will readily admit that the proportion of their produce for foreign market must be still greater. It is very true that the population of the western country is inconsiderable, comparatively with the vast extent of that territory; yet the number of its inhabitants is respectable, and deserves doubtless the attention of the supreme legislature of the union. The state of Pennsylvania has several populous counties beyond the mountains, whose produce must go to market by the Alleghany and Monongahela rivers down the Ohio and Mississippi. Virginia is in the same situation, as to her possessions on the Ohio and Great Kanawha rivers. The state of Kentucky, which is far from being contemptible for the number of her inhabitants, has no other way to export her produce. The territory north-west of the Ohio, comprehending the several settlements of Scioto, Miami, Wabash, and the villages and country Illinois, is in the very same predicament; and lastly, the territory south of the Ohio, containing upwards of 500,000 souls, lies altogether on the western waters, and is more conveniently situated than all the others to the navigation of the Mississippi. At a moderate calculation then, we may well estimate half a million of people, mostly farmers, who can export none of their produce, but through the channel of the Mississippi. So great a part of the nation ought not and cannot much longer be neglected.

The pretended exclusive right of Spain to the navigation of the Mississippi, is founded on no principle of equity or natural justice.—Shall a country of more extent than any of the kingdoms of Europe be debarred of its natural right of sending its produce to sea, because Spain happens to have a small town with a few subjects near the mouth of the Mississippi? How long will Americans submit to the oppression of paying a heavy and degrading tribute to a Spanish officer, for a license (in his power ever to deny) to proceed to sea with their vessel and produce? and under the restrictions of making such vessels Spanish bottoms, which subjects them to be seizable by the armed fleets of France.—In what a wretched situation these arbitrary proceedings of Spain place our western citizens! If they wish to export their produce, they must not only make use of the most humble solicitations, but they are compelled besides to pay a very high duty for the permission of sailing out of the Mississippi under the colours of a foreign nation at war with our allies.—How degrading such restrictions! how humiliating to an American.

It is easy to foresee what will be the consequence, if a treaty be not soon, and very soon, negotiated with Spain.—The western inhabitants, whose numbers increase daily by the constant emigrations from the Atlantic states, have complained for near ten years past, of the oppression they labour under; but the confidence they had in their delegated rulers, caused them to wait till now, not without impatience, the effects of negotiation; they are a hardy, courageous and enterprising people, and though they entertain the greatest respect for the laws of their country, and tho' they are much attached to the federal government, yet their favorite axiom in politics is, (a maxim established unanimously in 1776, by the congress of the United States) that allegiance and protection are reciprocal. Quoque tandem Hispania, abuteris Patientia nostra?

NEW-YORK, August 22.
Letter from Citizen Genet to the President of the United States, with Mr. Jefferson's Answer.

New-York, 13th August, 1793.
24 year of the Republic.
Citizen Genet, Minister Plenipotentiary from the French Republic, to General Washington, President of the United States.

SIR,
INTRUSTED in this part of the world with the interests and rights of the French people, as you are with those of the citizens of America, I have sworn to my country, and imposed it as a sacred duty on myself, never to permit private considerations or other motives foreign to the general weal, to impede me what I conceived the line of duty. My conduct has accordingly been marked with all the energy and frankness which ever characterize a true republican. To you alone, through the Secretary of State, have I complained of the principles you have adopted, and remonstrated against decisions which have refused therefrom. To you alone have I declared that the federal government, far from manifesting any regard for our generous conduct towards this country—for the new advantages we were offering to her commerce—or for the reiterated demonstrations of our real and disinterested friendship, were sacrificing our interests to that of our enemies, by their interpretation of the treaties which exist between us. To you have I presented without reserve that this conduct did not appear to correspond with the views of the people of America, with their desire to observe with fidelity their public engagements or with their affectionate regard for the cause of liberty, upon which their very existence and prosperity depend. Certain decisions of your tribunals and verdicts of your juries, added to the sentiments of your fellow citizens publicly expressed, might permit me without a crime to draw this inference.

Nevertheless, certain persons actuated by views which time will develop, despatching to attack my principles, have descended to personal abuse, in hopes of withdrawing from me that esteem which the public feel and avow for the representative of the French republic.—I lay public with great warmth that I have insulted you, and that I have threatened you with an appeal to the people, as if you would permit any one with impunity to treat you with disrespect, or as if the slightest hint of an appeal, which a magistrate deserving of his high office should ardently desire, was to you the greatest offence I could offer.

It is become necessary, sir, to dissipate these dark calumnies by truth and publicity. I dare therefore to expect from your candour and probity an explicit declaration, that "I have never intimated to you an intention of appealing to the people; that it is not true that a difference in political sentiments has ever betrayed me to forget what was due to your character or to the exalted reputation you had acquired by humbling a tyrant against whom you fought in the cause of liberty." A publication of your answer will be the only reply which shall be given to those party men, who have failed to confound the individual with affairs of state, which they too often make use of, as a pretext for their zeal and a reason for dauntlessly appearing under anonymous signatures.

As to myself, I have always openly declared what I thought, and signed what I had written; and if others have supposed they could advance my views, by newspaper publications and paragraphs they are much deceived, a good cause needs no advocate; time and truth will make it triumph, and ours must triumph in spite of its implacable enemies, and the present cold indifference of some who were its ancient friends.

I have the honor to be, &c.

MR. JEFFERSON'S ANSWER.
Philadelphia, August 16, 1793.
SIR,

THE President of the United States has received the letter which you addressed to him from New-York, on the 13th inst. and I am desirous to observe to you, that it is not the established course for the diplomatic characters residing here, to have any direct correspondence with him. The Secretary of State is the organ through which their commission should pass.

The President does not conceive it to be within the line of propriety or duty for him to bear evidence against a declaration, which whether made to him or others, is perhaps immaterial; he therefore declines interfering in the case.

I have the honor to be with great respect

Sir,

Your most obedient,

And most humble servt.

THOMAS JEFFERSON.

The Minister Plenipotentiary of the republic of France.

August 24.

The French West-India accounts are far from being pacific.—By the ship Sally, Captain Brown, arrived on Thursday, we learn that all the whites have left the Cape.

Postscript.—Late last evening the brig Alexander, Capt. Afan, arrived in this port from Liverpool, which place she left on the 15th of June. Our last London papers were of the 10th, she has brought none later. Reports from the seat of war were circulating at Liverpool, that the combined armies had been defeated, &c.—Twenty-six passengers came in the Alexander, to settle in this country, who say that a revolution must soon take place in England. Extract of a letter from London, dated the 10th of June last, to a gentleman in Philadelphia.

"The new-papers, a few days since, informed us, that d'Artois had visited our court, and made an offer for the 'she-bear of the north,' of the bodies of fifty thousand men, to go against France provided we would find money. Our court had, however, the wisdom to refuse the offer. To day it is reported in town, and I have heard it on good authority, that Mr. Pitt is desirous of entering into a correspondence with the National Convention, on the subject of a peace. He has made a motion to this effect in the council—and the king has opposed it, in consequence of which, it is said, that Mr. Pitt is about laying down his credentials, and retiring from his situation. I wish this may prove true, as it may be a means of shortening the war, and bringing about an opening for trade.

"Accounts from several parts of the country say, that great numbers of the poor are out of employ; and that if it had not been for the contributions raised by the rich, they must inevitably have starved, or risen up in mobs, and taken by force what they could not earn by labour. The dimculties of credit, and the scarcity of cash, continue in spite of the scheme of cashique-bills. Of the conquests of France, every day lessens the probability."

PHILADELPHIA, August 21.
From the General Advertiser.
Great reliance may be placed on the following intelligence.

Extract of a letter from a gentleman of deep observation and strict veracity in Hamburg, to his friend in this city.

"The German newspapers, I send you, are intended for one of your newspaper printers. In making use of them I must remark, it will be necessary to observe that they are forced almost all to be partial against the French; and that their boasted victories are neither so decisive, nor so great, as is related. The war will last terribly in lives and money, and the Emperor and Prussia are almost exhausted in point of finances. Unhappily those mischievous Jacobins do all to promote and second the measures of the German and other conspiring princes. Mar-ras, Robertpierre, and Danton are really the greatest enemies to France. But their party begins to fail; and is entirely destroyed at Marseilles, Rouen, &c. only Paris and Lyons support it."

By the latest accounts from Spain, it does not appear that they have succeeded in any one material instance, against France. In becoming a member of the present combination, Spain has proved herself to be what she has always been alleged, a feeble monarchy. She is encumbered with a national debt of near fifty millions sterling, her resources are inconsiderable, and her military efforts are every where marked with impotence and ill success. Some blazing pagodas have lately appeared of some of the late conquests of her armies in France, but the authenticity of these accounts is disputed. A number of fort-resses in France, as strong as Vauban could make them, must be taken by regular sieges before the country can be penetrated, and when these obstacles are overcome, the Spaniards will find the country laid waste, and no means of supplying themselves with provisions but by an almost insupportable land carriage from their own country.

Capt Gregory powers, of the brig Hiram, arrived here last Wednesday, in fourteen days from Cape Francois, was boarded on the first of August, by the sloop Suffannah, of New-Providence, Capt Tucker, mounting eight guns, off the west Caicos, who robbed the passengers of every article they had on board; they even took two yards of linen from one of them. He robbed them of about five hundred fives in cash, and nearly the same amount in plate. Six negroes were also taken by him, two of them, being favorite slaves, a girl and boy, were redeemed at the request of the owners, by Capt. Powers, the girl for 100 dollars, and the boy for 150. Tucker had robbed of property. Captain Powers supposes Tucker had upwards of half a million of dollars worth of property on board, which the pickerooning miscreant had taken from distressed French families.

August 28.

Accounts from Martinique inform that the negroes who were declared free, in order to induce them to take up arms against the aristocrats, now retain their arms to support their freedom, and will not labour—slavery an hard work being, to their comprehension, synonymous terms.

By a publication in a Charleston paper, it appears, that General Borel is in that city, lodged there at the charge of one of his friends.

A publication in the Charleon papers, signed Polverel and Southern, charges General Galland as being the author of all the mischief which have befallen Hispaniola since his arrival.—This account says, that 60,000 revolted slaves are in the colony, devoted to the Spaniards and the cause of kings—but still they do not despair of the public cause.

NEW-LONDON, August 22.
Saturday last arrived here the brig Prudence, from Cape-Francois, with 34 French passengers. He left the Cape the 30th ult. the day previous to which, it was reported, that the Spaniards joined by the brigands, were within a few miles of the town; and orders were issued by the commissioners forbidding the embarkation of any inhabitant on board the vessels; but the prohibition was taken off in the evening.

From the best intelligence we can obtain, it appears that near seven eighths of Cape-Francois are burnt: On the 30th ult. some of the ruins were yet smoking.—The place is garrisoned by minatoes and negroes, but mostly by the latter.

BALTIMORE, August 30.
From Philadelphia we learn, that a very dangerous disorder rages in that city, and has already carried off a great number of persons; Physicians call it the yellow fever, or a species of the camp-fever, which raged so violently last year; while others positively affirm it to be the plague, from the symptoms and short time the persons live who are seized by it.—On the morning of the 24th inst. between Market and Vine-Streets, and front and Water-Streets, forty-six persons were carried off by it. Several gentlemen of the Faculty are of opinion, that the neglected state in which the streets have long remained, if not the exact cause, has much contributed to the disorder, and recommend having the streets actually cleaned and watered.—Many preventatives are recommended to guard against its destructive ravages; amongst others, sprinkling vinegar and distilling the smoke of tobacco thro' the houses—tied rags to be placed in the rooms of kept in the pockets—and gamboge to be hung round the neck.

Lexington, October 12.
At a meeting of the Democratic Society in Lexington on Monday the 7th instant; the following resolution was read and ordered to lie on the table until the next meeting; and to be then taken up for further discussion:

"The Citizens of this Commonwealth having for a series of years been anxiously hoping, that the free use of an all important right, which they received from NATURE, and which is now wantonly & cruelly controlled and abused, would have been long since secured to them; and finding to far as they have been able to gain intelligence, that this event is inseparably connected with their happiness as a civilized and free people, instead of approaching, is perhaps receding;

"RESOLVED, That the free and undisturbed use and navigation of the River Mississippi is the NATURAL RIGHT of the Citizens of this Commonwealth; and is unalienable except with the SOIL; and that neither time, nor any precription on the one side, nor acquiescence, tacitly, or even user on the other, can ever sanction the abuse of this right."

RACES
Will commence on the fourth Thursday in October, instead of the second, as published.

It leaves no trace of former worth behind.
The heart that once could feel a
social pain,
Is lost to every pleasure now but
gain.
The cheated dupe, instructed by his
wound,
Learns to dispense the mischiefs he
has found;
Creeps, like a wretch, neglected to
his grave,
And, as he liv'd a fool, he dies a knave.

Mr. Bradford:
YOU have lately amused the public with some statements of your friend the Republican, concerning the official conduct of the Secretary of the Treasury. You will also please to inform, thro
the same channel, that another statement shall be presented to your readers as soon as authentic documents can be obtained, in order to shew the falsity of your friend's.
As for the illiberal reflections inserted in that publication, they
and the author will be treated with contempt.

To the Reader.

A certain Henry Young, of Mercer county, hath lately, by the assistance of Mr. J—K, had a piece printed in the Gazette—he says, to prevent future aspersion on him and family, about the death of a horse. About the 14th of June last soon in the morning, the report of a gun was heard at said Young's
by me and some of the neighbours.
The latter part of the same day,
news came to me that one of my horses was then in said Young's inclosure, and by said Young's confession the other was in that same morning; two days after, by a diligent searching near said Young's fence in a thicket of bushes, found my horse shot through the body and dead. Those are the circumstances relating to the death of the horse so murdered by some base person.

A man that will keep the history of the four kings in his house and be being an apt scholar, reads said history to his neighbour's slaves and win their money, what is it such a person will not be guilty of, tho I never mean to set pen to paper again on the subject.
